The Magnificence of Kartik Month

दामोदरं प्रपद्येऽहं श्रीराधारमणं प्रभुं । प्रभावाद् यस्य तत्प्रेष्ठः कार्तिकः सेवितो भवेत् ॥ dāmodaraṁ prapadye'haṁ śrīrādhāramaṇaṁ prabhuṁ prabhāvād yasya tat-preṣṭhaḥ kārtikaḥ sevito bhavet

"I bow to Shri Radharaman, who is also known as Damodar. By his grace alone, we can properly observe his beloved month of Kartik." (Hari Bhakti Vilas, 16.1)

Kartik is a special time when we can please Shri Krishn easily. During this month, devotees take a vow or vrata to follow certain spiritual practices, and this is also known as Niyam Seva. In the Bhakti Rasamrit Sindhu (1.2.221), Shri Roop Goswami also refers to this vrata by the name of urja, meaning divine power. This month also belongs to the source of all divine power, the goddess of sacred love, Shri Radharani.

Those who follow the Kartik Vrat are blessed beyond imagination. In the Padma Puran (quoted in Hari Bhakti Vilas, 16.23), Sage Narad says:

मानुषः कर्मभूमौ यः कार्तिकं नयते सुधा । चिन्तामणिं करे प्राप्य क्षिप्यते कंदमाम्बुनि ॥

mānuṣaḥ karmabhūmau yaḥ kārtikaṁ nayate sudhā cintāmaṇiṁ kare prāpya kṣipyate karddamāmbuni

"The month of Kartik is like the legendary gem, chintamani, which grants all wishes to those who possess it. But if you pass the month of Kartik without observing a vow, it is like throwing chintamani in a lake of mud."

The scripture recommends performing the Kartik Vrat in a holy place rather than at home. But in particular, offering Kartik Vrat in Braj is extremely powerful. The Padma Puran (quoted in Hari Bhakti Vilas, 16.156-162) says:

दुर्लभः कार्तिको विप्र मथुरायां नृणामिह । यत्रार्चितः स्वकं रूपं भक्तेभ्यः संप्रयच्छति ॥
भुक्तिं मुक्तिं हरिर्दद्यादर्चितोऽन्यत्र सेविनाम् । भक्तिञ्च न ददात्येष यतो वश्यकरी हरेः ॥

durlabhaḥ kārtiko vipra mathurāyām nṛṇāmiha yatārccitaḥ svakaṁ rūpaṁ bhaktebhyaḥ samprayacchati bhuktiṁ muktiṁ harirdadyādarccito'nyatra sevinām bhaktiñca na dadātyeṣa yato vaśyakarī hareḥ

"It is very rare for a human being to be able to be in Braj during Kartik. In Braj, Shri Krishn gives his very self to his devotees. In other places of the world, Krishn grants material blessings or liberation, but he rarely gives devotion, because devotion has the power to bring Krishn under its spell and control him completely."

सा त्वञ्जसा हरेर्भक्तिर्लभ्यते कार्तिके नरैः । मथुरायां सकृदपि श्रीदामोदरपूजनात् ॥ मन्त्रद्रव्य विहीनञ्च विधिहीनञ्च पूजनम् । मन्यते कार्तिके देवो मथुरायां यदर्चनम् ॥ sā tvañjasā harerbhaktirlabhyate kārtike naraiḥ mathurāyām sakṛdapi śrīdāmodarapūjanāt mantradravya vihīnañca vidhihīnañca pūjanam manyate kārtike devo mathurāyām yadarccanam

"But when you worship Damodar (Krishn) in Braj even one time during Kartik, he easily grants this devotion to you. Even if the worship is done without proper mantras, rules and offerings, Krishn accepts it as the highest form of worship."

यस्य पापस्य युज्येत मरणान्ता विनिष्कृतिः । तच्छुद्धयर्थमिदं प्रोक्तं प्रायश्चित्तं सुनिश्चितम् । कार्तिके मथुरायां वै श्रीदामोदरपूजनम् ॥

yasya pāpasya yujyeta maraṇāntā viniṣkṛtiḥ tacchuddhayarthamidam proktaṁ prāyaścittaṁ suniścitam kārtike mathurāyāṁ vai śrīdāmodarapūjanam

"Sins that otherwise would only be paid for after death are washed away by worshipping Krishn in Braj during Kartik."

कार्तिके मथुरायां वै पूजनादर्शनाद्ध्रुवः । शीघ्रं सम्प्राप्तवान् बालो दुर्लभं योगतत्परैः ॥

kārtike mathurāyāṁ vai pūjanāddarśanāddhruvaḥ śīghraṁ samprāptavān bālo durllabhaṁ yogatatparaiḥ

"By worshipping Krishn in Braj during Kartik, the famous devotee Dhruv Maharaj attained the Lord's darshan, which is difficult for even the great rishis to attain. He attained this blessing despite being just a small child."

सुलभा मथुरा भूमौ प्रत्यब्दं कार्तिकस्तथा । तथापि संसरन्तीह नरा मूढा भवाम्बुधौ ॥

sulabhā mathurā bhūmau pratyabdam kārtikastathā । tathāpi saṁsarantīha narā mūḍhā bhavāmbudhau ॥

"India is right here, Braj is easy to reach, and the month of Kartik comes every year. Yet foolish people miss the chance to observe Kartik in Braj, and so they remain fallen in the ocean of repeated birth and death."

Spiritual Practices During Kartik

In addition to increasing daily practices like jap, kirtan and so forth, the scriptures mention specific practices for devotees to observe during Kartik. These are as follows:

Five Main Practices

The five main practices are mentioned by Shri Krishn in the Padma Puran (quoted in Hari Bhakti Vilas, 16.92). These are:

1. Deep daan or the offering of lamps daily
2. Bathing at dawn daily
3. Jaagran or staying up all night for Krishn's sake (this can be done on any day during the vrat)
4. Serving the tulsi plant daily
5. Udyaapan or holding a grand festival at the end of the vrat, which includes a fire offering or havan, feeding Brahmins and Vaishnavs, go-daan or giving cows away in charity, and other special events

Krishn goes on to say, "One should perform jaagran in a temple of Hari, a temple of Shiv, at the base of a peepal tree, or in a tulsi garden. If due to some misfortune, you are unable to find any water to bathe in, or if you are physically ill, then you can perform snaan just by chanting Harinaam.

If you are unable to perform udyapan, then you can feed Brahmins according to your ability in order to complete the vrat.

If you are unable to offer lamps in Kartik, instead, you can re-light someone else's lamp which has gone out, or protect someone else's lamp from the wind. If there are no tulsi plants to serve, you may worship Brahmins and Vaishnavs instead. And finally, if you cannot do any of the above practices, then you can still complete the vrat by simply serving Brahmins, cows, and the sacred trees known as peepal and banyan." (Hari Bhakti Vilas, 16.95-98)

Other Important Practices

The scriptures also recommend the following practices during Kartik month:

- Chanting Damodarashtakam daily
- Hearing Shrimad Bhagwatam Katha daily in the association of Vaishnavs
- Living amongst devotees
- Serving saints
- Feeding cows
- Offering obeisances to Krishn, Shri dham, guru parampara, devotees and so forth
- Worshipping Krishn, especially by offering food, fruits, silver, gems and pearls to him

Further, one is advised to:

- Observe the vrat in a holy place instead of at home
- Sleep on the floor
- Otherwise, avoid sleeping in someone else's bed
- Eat a limited diet and/or eat only once a day
- Avoid applying oil on the body
- Eat in silence
- Stop all sinful actions like eating forbidden foods, theft, adultery and so forth when performing the vrat

Material Benefits of Kartik Practices

Devotees following the Vrindavan mood offer Kartik Vrat for Krishn's sake, without wanting any result but his happiness. Although the scriptures have also mentioned many material benefits of this vrat, these are not the main reason for observing it. Still, we have included just a few examples here:

- Observing Kartik Vrat grants positive results that last forever.
- By limiting one's diet during Kartik, one gets sarupya mukti (a form like Narayan's).
- By offering a lamp during Kartik, amongst other benefits, all one's sins are burned up, one's ancestors attain mukti, and one gets a greater result than if he had offered everything he owns in charity.
- By reviving someone else's lamp, one never goes to hell.

- By placing a lamp on the spire of a temple, hundreds of generations of one's ancestors are delivered, even if the person was hired to do so.
- By lighting a lamp in the house of a Brahmin, you get the results of an agnishtom yagya.
- One who offers a deep mala – a row of lamps – inside and outside a temple of Shri Hari (Krishn) will, at the end of life, depart for the supreme abode on a path illuminated by those same lamps.
- Even one who just admires the temple when it is lit by lamps during Kartik never goes to hell.
- Each step of a parikrama around a temple of Hari during Kartik gives the result of an ashwamedh yagya.

In contrast, neglecting to observe the vrata yields negative results for one who worships the Lord with desires. The details of all the material and spiritual results of Kartik Vrat can be found in the sixteenth chapter of Hari Bhakti Vilas.

Guidelines for Offering Lamps During Kartik

The lamps we offer during Kartik should consist of a cotton wick soaked in either ghee or sesame (til) oil. No other oil should be used.

In addition to offering a single lamp to Krishn, we can also offer rows of lamps (deep mala), a lamp on the spire of a temple (shikhar deep), a hanging lamp (akash deep) or a lamp floating on water. We can also offer lamps to tulsi.

Krishn is also pleased if we re-light a lamp that was offered by someone else, or protect someone else's lamp from the wind. More information along with mantras for different lamp offerings can be found in the sixteenth chapter of Hari Bhakti Vilas.

Shri Radha-Damodar Puja

"Damodar" is a name of Krishn meaning "he who is bound by love" and his beloved month of Kartik also goes by the name of Damodar. During this month one should offer puja to Radha-Damodar (Radha-Krishn) in their deity form. The Padma Puran also states:

द्विजं दामोदरं कृत्वा तत्पत्नीं राधिकां तथा । कार्तिके पूजनीयौ तौ वासोऽलङ्कारभोजनैः ॥

dvijaṃ dāmodaraṃ kṛtvā tat-patnīm rādhikāṃ tathā । kārtike pūjanīyau tau vāso'laṅkārabhojanaiḥ ॥

"During Kartik, one should worship Shri Radha-Damodar in the form of a Brahmin and his wife by performing their puja with offerings of clothes, jewellery and fine foods." (Hari Bhakti Vilas, 16.196)

In one or both of these forms, one should perform this Radha-Damodar Puja and chant the Damodarashtakam every day throughout Kartik. (See page 9 for the text of this prayer.)

Sankalp and Starting the Vrat

In the Padma Puran, Shri Krishn says to Satyabhama, अश्विनस्य तु मासस्य या शुक्लैकादशी भवेत् । कार्तिकस्य व्रतानीह तस्यां कुर्यादतन्द्रितः ॥ aśvinasya tu māsasya yā śuklaikādaśī bhavet । kārtikasya vratānīha tasyām kuryādātandritaḥ - "On the Shukla Ekadashi of Ashwin month, one should give up laziness and begin the Kartik Vrat." (Hari Bhakti Vilas, 16.168) The vrat continues until the Dwadashi following Devotthan Ekadashi. However, the option of beginning the vrat on Sharad Purnima or on Tula Sankranti is also given in the Hari Bhakti Vilas (16.183).

Krishn further instructs us on how to take the sankalp or vow on the first day of our vrat. He says that we should wake up in the last yaam of the night (any time within the period of about three hours before dawn), bathe, and then awaken Shri Krishn by offering prayers (stavas). After hearing katha on Vaishnav philosophy, we should celebrate Mangla Aarti at dawn, with singing and so forth, along with other Vaishnavs.

After Mangla Aarti, we should go to a river or kund and, after doing aachman, declare our sankalp (vow) to the Lord, pray to him, and offer arghya to him according to the rules.

Sankalp Mantra

कार्तिकेऽहं करिष्यामि प्रातःस्नानं जर्नाह्न ।
प्रीत्यर्थं तव देवेश दामोदर मया सह ॥ kārtike'ham kariṣyāmi prātaḥ-snānam janārdana prītyarthaṁ tava deveśa dāmodara mayā saha

"O Damodar! O Janardan! O Devesh! I perform this Kartik morning snaan for the happiness of you and Shri Radharani."

Prarthana Mantra

तव ध्यानेन देवेश जलेऽस्मिन् स्नातुमुद्यतः । त्वत्प्रसादाच्च मे पापं दामोदर विनश्यतु ॥

tava dhyānena deveśa jale'smin snātumudyataḥ tvatprasādācca me pāpaṁ dāmodara vinaśyatu

"O Damodar! O Devesh! As I meditate upon you, I perform the act of bathing. May all my sins be destroyed by your grace."

Arghya Mantra

व्रतिनः कार्तिके मासि स्नातस्य विधिवन्मम ।
दामोदर गृहाणार्घ्यं दनुजेन्द्रनिसूदन ॥
नित्ये नैमित्तिके कृत्स्ने कार्तिके पापशोषणे । गृहाणार्घ्यं मया दत्तं राधया सहितो हरे ॥ vratiṇaḥ kārtike māsi snātasya vidhivanmama dāmodara gṛhāṇārghyaṁ danujendranisūdana nitye naimittike kṛtsne kārtike pāpaśoṣaṇe gṛhāṇārghyaṁ mayā dattaṁ rādhayā sahito hare

"O Radha-Damodar! Having accepted the Kartik Vrat, I am now performing praatah snaan. Please accept my arghya to you. In Kartik Maas all nitya and naimittik kriyas remove sins; hence, I offer you this arghya."

Thereafter, we should apply til [sesame paste or oil] on our body and chant the Holy Names of Shri Krishn, as we take snaan according to the rules. Afterwards, those who do sandhyopasana should perform it. Then, return home. After that, we should cleanse the altar and draw a swastik [using sandalwood paste or roli] in front of the deity, and do his puja by offering tulsi with lotus, malati, agastya and other flowers that Krishn likes.

Paaran: Bringing the Vrat to a Close

In the Kartik Mahatmya section of the Padma Puran, it is written:

पारणं कार्तिके शुक्ले द्वादश्यान्तु ततश्चरेत् । कृष्णस्याग्रे निवेद्यथ व्रतं कृच्छ्राग्र्यमुत्तमम् । विष्णुलोकमवाप्नोति भक्त्याभ्यर्च्य जनार्दनम् ॥ pāraṇam kārtike śukle dvādaśyāntu tataścaret । kṛṣṇasyāgre nivedyatha vratam kṛcchrāgryamuttamam । viṣṇulokamavāpnoti bhaktyābhycarya janārdanam ॥

"One should end the vrat on Kartik Shukla Dwadashi, and perform Shri Krishn's puja, offering the vrat to him. By doing so, one attains his eternal dham." (Hari Bhakti Vilas, 411)

Chapter 16 of the Hari Bhakti Vilas mentions a specific procedure for ending the vrat on this day if one has also observed the Chaturmaysa Vrat. Otherwise, one should end the vrat like any other Ekadashi (by eating the foods one gave up during the vrat) and awaken the gods.

Shri Damodarashtakam A Prayer to Krishn who is Bound by Love

Spoken by Satyavrat Muni in the Padma Puran Bhavanuvad inspired by Sanatan Goswami's Dig-Darshini Tika

नमामीश्वरं सच्चिदानन्दरूपं
लसत्कुण्डलं गोकुले भ्राजमानम ।
यशोदाभियोलूखलाद्भावमानं
परामृष्टमत्यन्ततो द्रुत्य गोप्या ॥ namāmīśvaram saccidānanda-rūpaṁ lasat-kuṇḍalaṁ gokule bhrājamānam yaśodābhiyolūkhalād-dhāvamānam parāmṛṣtam-atyantato drutyagopyā

I bow to Krishn, who is the Lord himself. The very form of existence, consciousness and bliss plays as a child in Braj. As he runs away from his mother, Yashoda, his earrings kiss his cheeks again and again – how blessed they are! But she runs faster and catches him from behind. (1)

रुदन्तं मुहुर्नेत्रयुग्मं मृजन्तम्
कराम्भोजयुग्मेन सातङ्कनेत्रम् ।
मुहुः श्वासकम्पत्रिरेखाङ्ककण्ठ स्थितग्रैवं दामोदरं भक्तिबद्धम् ॥

rudantaṁ muhurnetrayugmaṁ mṛjantaṁ karāmbhoja-yugmena sātaṅkanetram muhuḥ śvāsakampa tri-rekhāṅka-kaṅṭha-sthita-graivaṁ dāmodaraṁ bhakti-baddham

Crying and shaking with fear, he rubs his teary eyes with his hands, smearing the kohl all over his face, hoping his mother will forgive him for stealing butter. His beautiful neck, graced with three natural lines, like a delicate conch shell, sparkles with pearls and gold. These ornaments tremble with his fearful sighs, as Yashoda binds him with the rope of her love. (2)

इतीदृक्स्वलीलाभिरानन्दकुण्डे
स्वघोषं निमज्जन्तमाख्यापयन्तम् ।
तदीयेषितज्ञेषु भक्तैर्जितत्वं पुनः प्रेमतस्तं शतावृत्ति वन्दे ॥ itīdrk sva-līlābhir ānanda-kuṇḍe svaghoṣaṁ nimajjantaṁ ākhyāpayantaṁ tadīyeṣita-jñeṣu bhaktair jitatvaṁ punaḥ prematastaṁ śatāvṛtti vande

In this lila and so many others, the Brajwasis control him with love alone, and thus they drown in the sacred kund of bliss. These lilas prove that Krishn is only won by love, not by awe and reverence. Now the real glory of Krishn and his Brajwasis has been revealed. My infinite obeisances to their love! (3)

वरं देव मोक्षं न मोक्षावधिं वा न चन्यं वृणेऽहं वरेषादपीह । varam deva mokṣaṁ na mokṣāvadhiṁ vā na cānyaṁ vṛṇe'haṁ vareśādapīha idaṁ te vapur-nātha gopāla-bālaṁ sadā me manasyāviraśtāṁ kim-anyaīḥ

O Krishn! I know you can grant any wish, but I don't want anything from you. I don't want mukti, nor do I long for Vaikunth. I don't even want the bliss that comes from offering devotion to you. I only want you to stay forever in my heart as that darling cowherd boy of Vrindavan. (4)

इदं ते मुखाम्भोजमत्यन्तनीलै

idaṁ te mukhāmbhojam atyanta-nīlair vṛtaṁ kuntalaiḥ snigdha-raktaiścagopyā muhúś cumbitaṁ bimba-raktādharaṁ me manasyāviraśtām-alam lakṣa-lābhaiḥ

May the dark lotus that is your face blossom forever in my heart, swarmed by the black bees of your curls, gleaming with those red berry lips, decorated on both cheeks by the kisses of a certain gopi. If a thousand other blessings were mine, what use would they be to me? (5)

नमो देव दामोदरानन्त विष्णो

kṛpā-drṣṭi-vṛṣṭyāti-dīnaṁ batānu grhāṇeṣa māmajñam-edhyakṣi-dṛśyaḥ*

O Damodar, I bow to you. Please have mercy on me! I am hopelessly tangled in a net of sorrows, sunk deep in the ocean of separation from you. I don't know how to live without you and it's breaking my heart. Please appear and shower me with the nectar of life from your merciful glance! (6)

कुवेरात्मजौ बद्धमूर्त्यैव यद्वत्

Whilst bound yourself, you freed Kuver's sons and saved them from Sage Narad's curse. You gave them moksh and granted them sacred love for your lotus feet. But I do not desire moksh. O Damodar! Just please bless me with the same love that you gave to them. (7)

नमस्तेऽस्तु दाम्ने स्फुरद्दीप्तिधाम्ने

I bow to Yashoda's precious rope, and to the darling belly it binds - which contains the whole universe. I bow to your Beloved, Shri Radha, to your infinite Vrindavan lilas, and to you. (8)

Shri Radha Kripa Kataksh Stotra A Prayer for Shri Radha's Merciful Sidelong Glance

Spoken by Lord Shiv in the Urdhvamnaya Tantra

मुनीन्द्रवृन्दवन्दिते त्रिलोकशोकहारिणि

O daughter of Vrishbhanu, Shri Radhe! Praised by heavenly sages, you unburden the three worlds by taking away their sorrows. With the softness and beauty of a lotus flower, your face blossoms with joyful expressions as you play with your Beloved, Krishn, in the secluded, green hideaways of Braj. When will you bless me with a merciful glance from the corner of your eyes? (1)

A climbing vine on an ashok tree reaches above you, providing shade for you and your dainty lotus feet – feet which glow with coral strokes of lac dye (alta). Your hands, full of grace and beauty, bestow blessings of fearlessness upon the hearts of your devotees. O treasure trove of sacred love, Shri Radhe! When will you bless me with a merciful glance from the corner of your eyes? (2)

On the blissful battlefield of love, you wield a bow in the form of your eyebrows. When you shoot the sharp arrow of your glance deep into Krishn's heart, he is spellbound, confused and overcome with the desire to receive your blessings. Everyone knows he is eternally bound by the magic spell of your love, Shri Radhe! When will you bless me with a merciful glance from the corner of your eyes? (3)

Your body emanates a divine, golden glow like lightning, or yellow champa flowers; your enchanting face shines brighter than a million autumn moons. You are intoxicated by your own youthfully charming mannerisms, for they give your Beloved such great pleasure. Your sweet sulking gives your Lover such bliss; so much so that your pouting has become a precious jewel in your adornment. The greatest scholar of the romantic arts, you are completely absorbed in the colours of love for Krishn. You are most fortunate of all, for only you give supreme pleasure to your Beloved! O queen of Vrindavan's forest havens! O queen of love, Shri Radhe! When will you bless me with a merciful glance from the corner of your eyes? (5)

Endless ecstatic moods adorn your form like a priceless diamond necklace. Your bountiful breasts resemble sacred golden urns, or the perfectly smooth, round forehead of a regal elephant. Your gentle smile sends fragrant sandalwood powder rippling across the ocean of joy that is you. O Shri Radhe! When will you bless me with a merciful glance from the corner of your eyes? (6)

Your arms are like tender lotus stems floating on waves of ecstasy, and your darling blue eyes dance like a climbing vine in the breeze. Your romantic mannerisms bring delight in the heart of Krishn; you are his only shelter, Shri Radhe! When will you bless me with a merciful glance from the corner of your eyes? (7)

O Beloved! Our blessed home of Braj has become the most sacred place in all the universe, for you have graced it with your birth. Maha Lakshmi has devoted her entire being to this land in pursuit of you, her service filling it with prosperity. You bring joy to the hearts of everyone here; but not us. The intensity of this burning pain is enough to end our lives but we've already given over our life's force, which now resides within your heart. If you burned in separation for us the way we do for you, that very force would have burned too, ending our lives; yet here we are. But still, we don't ask that you end our pain. We only hope you will cast a glance our way and see the condition you've left us in. (1)

O giver of blessings! With eyes that outshine the radiance of autumnal lotuses in a pool of water, you pierced our unguarded hearts with glances of flaming arrows, setting us ablaze and leaving us to burn. O prince of love's delight! In complete surrender, we innocent young women gave ourselves to you with no expectation of anything in return. How could you, the ultimate lover of love, slay us with the weapon of your lethal eyes? (2)

O great hero! There was a time when you would protect us from each and every danger. You saved our lips from the touch of poisoned water; you shielded us from drowning in the rains and lightning born of Indra's wrath; you rescued us from the terror of such powerful demons: Agha, Vyomasur, Arishtasur the bull demon and Trinavart the demon of windstorms. Do you remember? (3)

We know you're not just the son of a gopi; you are the eternal friend of all beings and the only Lord in every heart. Brahma prayed for a saviour for the world and you, born in Satvata's dynasty, were the answer. Is it not your duty to save us as well? (4)

Your lotus feet, a treasure trove of beauty, danced fearlessly on the hoods of the serpent, Kaliya. The same lotus feet that take the cows to graze effortlessly crush the sins of surrendered souls. So without hesitation, please place those precious feet on our breasts so that they may extinguish the burning desire in our hearts. (7)

From the stories of your pastimes flows nectar of the sweetest kind. Great devotees proclaim that the joy of heaven or moksh does not compare to this delight. Not only do your tales soothe the pain of sorrows in this world and destroy the sins of listeners, they also provide precious relief to those whose hearts ache in separation from you. Your pastimes bless the hearts of those who hear them with sacred love. Thus, the great souls who tell your stories are the givers of all givers. (9)

O cunning cheat! Memories of your smile, your passionate eyes and the love we shared combine to form sweet poison, giving pleasure that only transforms to pain in the end. (10)

But then, you have always loved to make us cry. When you leave to graze the cows, you torment us with worry that your feet, soft like flowers, could be hurt by stones or blades of grass. Even tender sprouts could harm your delicate feet. (11)

And when you finally return home at the end of the day, with the beauty of your dark face exceeding that of a lotus, you tease us by keeping yourself and your swarm of Braj-dust-decorated black curls just out of reach. O how this wounds our hearts with desire. (12)

O bliss incarnate! Please don't take offence. Kaliya offended you once but he attained your lotus feet upon surrendering to you. You forgave Brahma as well when he worshipped them too. Your feet are this earth's most priceless ornament. Please place those very feet on our breasts in forgiveness and adorn our chests with the jewels of your footprints. (13)

Like Dhanvantri, you possess a divine medicine with the ability of ending all our pain. Though the nectar of your kiss cures the disease of separation, it is a costly remedy for it also makes our desire for you even more intense. This medicine can make anyone forget their unhealthy habits and attachments and instead attach themselves to you. It is a rare love potion but don't be afraid to give it away for free. O charitable hero! Though your flute is only a piece of hollow wood, when your kisses fill her with this nectar, her sighs become the most enchanting melody. Please shower that nectar upon us as well. (14)

*aṭati yad bhavānahni kānanam truṭiryugāyate tvāmapaśyatām
kuṭilakuntalam śrīmukhaṁ ca te jaḍa udīkṣatām pakṣmakṛd dṛśām*

A single moment without you is like an eternity to us. When you to go the forest, we spend the whole day absorbed in unbearable sorrow. Even when you return we get no relief, for in Brahma's flawed creation, we are forced to blink, stopping us from receiving your continuous darshan. (15)

*patisutānvayabhrāṭṛbāndhavānativilaṅghya te'ntyacyutāgatāḥ

Hypnotised by the song of your flute, we have left our husbands and abandoned all relationships in sole pursuit of you. Why lure us to the forest just to leave us here alone and heartbroken? This anguish has us on the verge of death. O cheater, today, you've let us down. They call you Achyut, "the one who never fails"! But we know this isn't true, for you've failed us now, as we die without you. (16)

Our hearts are pierced with memories of you; like cupid's five arrows they hit one by one: soft words, a teasing glance, a smile... eyes filled with love, the touch of your broad chest, each and every image too painful to view. Drained of life, we drift out of consciousness, in longing for you. (17)

In our innocence, we were bound by your spell and dragged to this forest in the dead of night. We know you didn't bring us here to burn; we know your heart - you've called us here so you can fill our hearts with the sweet nectar of your love. We would only offer this back to you, so please, save us now so we can satisfy your craving with this love. (18)

O darling boy, your lotus feet are so tender! When you place them on our hearts, we cradle them ever so gently, fearing our firm breasts may harm them. Why do you torment us by walking through the forest with such soft feet? Even though we are on the verge of death as a result of your heartless actions, we live on - for our lives reside in you and you don't burn for us the way we do for you, therefore death does not come. So please, just use our lives to lengthen yours, so you can play happily in the blessed forests of Vrindavan forever. (19)

Thus, the gopis sang their song of separation with beautiful rhythm and melody, confessing their innermost secrets. As they cried with yearning for their Beloved, voices sweet and pure, Krishn appeared all of a sudden, draped in his shawl of brilliant yellow, wearing the widest smile on his enchanting face, adorned in a garland from Shri Radha; that boy whose love-filled arrows strike even Cupid down. Shri Radhakundashtakam

by Raghunath Das Goswami

Bhavanuvad based on Shri Anant Das Babaji's Stavamrita Kana Vyakhya

वृषभदनुजनाशान् नर्मधर्मोक्तिरङ्गै
निखिलनिजसखीभिर्यत् स्वहस्तेन पूर्णम् ।
प्रकटितमपि वृन्दारण्यराज्ञा प्रमोदैस् तदतिसुरभि राधाकुण्डम् एवाश्रयो मे ॥

tad ati-surabhi rādhā-kuṇḍam evāśrayo me*

After Krishn killed the demon Vrishabhasur, a wonderful lila took place, which started with a playful conversation between Radha and Krishn. [Radha teased Krishn that killing the demon was a sin, because it had come in the shape of a bull, and that he needed to atone by bathing in all the holy waters of the world before he could touch her. Krishn then used his divine powers to call all the holy waters and create his own lake, Shyam Kund. After bathing in it, he challenged his Beloved to make her own lake.] Then a divine lake was formed by Radha and her sakhis, who personally filled it with water. In the end, the work was completed by reluctantly accepting some help from Krishn. May this place of supreme beauty, Radha Kund, be my shelter. (For the full lila of Radha Kund's appearance, see the April 2018 issue of Sandarshan.) (1)

If anyone bathes in this divine lake, the tree of sacred love grows in the earth of their hearts. The form of love they receive is rarely attained, even amongst the gopis themselves. May this place of supreme beauty, Radha Kund, be my shelter. (2)

Although Krishn is worshipped by the whole universe, he himself worships Radha Kund. When Radha shows her sweet sulking (maan), he bathes here and offers seva to the kund, hoping to gain her kripa kataksh – a merciful glance from the corner of her eyes. May this place of supreme beauty, Radha Kund, be my shelter. (3)

But Krishn does not only serve this place to attain his desires; he serves because he loves this lake like he loves Radha, and he is the one who named it after her. May this place of supreme beauty, Radha Kund, be my shelter. (4)

The one who serves Radha Kund receives the greatest blessing; the vine of sacred love for Krishna grows in his heart. As the vine flourishes, tender buds of seva begin to appear, and when they burst into full bloom, the devotee becomes the maidservant of my beloved queen, Radha. May this place of supreme beauty, Radha Kund, be my shelter. (5)

In this water, filled with fragrant lotuses, the Divine Couple play every day. Their sakhis play with them, and all of them are madly in love. May this place of supreme beauty, Radha Kund, be my shelter. (8)

aciram iha śarīre darśayaty eva tasmai madhu-ripur ati-modaiḥ śliṣyamāṇāṃ priyāṃ tām*

If one chants this prayer to Radha Kund with complete faith and dedication, offering themselves as Radha's maidservant, that person will soon have darshan of Krishn blissfully bound in her embrace, even in this very lifetime. (9)

Festivals of Kartik 2019

Papankush Ekadashi (Ashwin Shukla Ekadashi)

Wednesday, October 9th

This is the last Ekadashi before Kartik begins, and most devotees begin their Niyam Seva (Kartik resolutions) on this day.

Sharad Purnima/Sharadotsav (Ashwin Purnima)

Sunday, October 13th

Sharad Purnima is the full moon night when Shri Radha-Krishn and the gopis met for the Raas Lila. In the Radharaman Temple, Shriji (Radharamanji) wears white, and the whole temple is draped in white cloth. There is a special bhog of puffed lotus seed pudding (makhane ki kheer) and fried flatbread covered in powdered sugar (chandrakala). Shriji sits on a special golden throne.

Laghu Sharadotsav (Kartik Krishna Pratipad)

Monday, October 14th

On this night, Shriji sits on a special silver throne. There is a special bhog of calabash pudding (ghia ki kheer) and fried flatbread covered in powdered sugar (chandrakala). From this day until the following summer, the Rajbhog Aarti is performed with ghee wicks, rather than flowers, because autumn has come and the weather is now mild.

Bahulashtami (Kartik Krishna Ashtami)

Monday, October 21st

On Bahulashtami, devotees flock to Radha Kund in large numbers to take a midnight bath in the holy lake. The Padma Puran says: गोवर्धन गिरौ रम्ये राधाकुण्डं प्रियं हरेः। कार्तिके बहुलाष्टम्यां तत्र स्नत्वा हरेः प्रियः॥ govardhana girau ramye rādhākuṇḍam priyam hareḥ। kārṭike bahulāṣṭamyām tatra snatvā hareḥ priyaḥ - "Whoever bathes in Krishn's beloved Radha Kund near Govardhan on Bahulashtami during Kartik becomes very dear to him."

Ramaa Ekadashi (Kartik Krishna Ekadashi)

Thursday, October 24th

The first Ekadashi of Kartik is called Ramaa Ekadashi. From this day until the end of Kartik, Radharamanji sits in a hathri (a little silver house with open sides).

Dhanteras (Kartik Krishna Trayodashi)

Friday, October 25th

Dhanteras is the appearance day of Lord Dhanvantari. In the evening, a chaupar board game is placed before Shriji so that he can play with Radharani.

Choti Dipawali (Kartik Krishna Chaturdashi)

Saturday, October 26th

Shriji wears yellow clothes on this day. After his bath, the Goswamis touch shirish patra (lebeck leaves) to his body as an Ayurvedic medicine to protect him from the changing weather, and they offer ghee lamps to him. There is also a ghee lamp offering to Yamraj.

Dipawali (Kartik Amavasya)

Sunday, October 27th

On this day, Shriji wears a special crown called kulah chandrika, which is reserved for Dipawali (Diwali) and Raksha Bandhan alone, and tilak is ceremoniously applied to his brow. Abhishek, pujan and aarti of Maha Lakshmi is held and multiple special dishes are offered as bhog to Shriji. In the night time, every Goswami family comes to receive Shriji's blessings in the form of prasad.

Govardhan Puja and Annakut (Kartik Shukla Pratipad)

Monday, October 28th

On this day, Govardhan Hill is worshipped with annakut (a mountain of food) and many devotees perform Govardhan parikrama. In the Radharaman Temple, Shriji comes out on to the altar in the morning and is seated on a special throne. There is abhishek of Giriraj Shila, worship of a cow and a cowherd boy, and puja of Govardhan Hill. A replica of Govardhan Hill is made on the temple floor from fresh cow dung. Many, many special dishes are offered on this day as bhog.

Bhaiya Dooj/Yam Dwitiya (Kartik Shukla Dwitiya)

Tuesday, October 29th

This day is the appearance day of Yamuna's brother, Yamraj. Sisters honour their brothers on this day, and brothers and sisters bathe together in the Yamuna River.

Gopashtami (Kartik Shukla Ashtami)

Monday, November 4th

Gopashtami is the day when, as a child, Krishna was allowed to herd full-grown cows for the first time. In the Radharaman Temple, Shriji is dressed in natvar shringaar, which includes a bugle (shringi), cow-herding stick (lakut), flute (murali) and a special crown called jura, similar to the one he wears on Ekadashi. After Shringaar Aarti, puja is offered similar to that which is done on Govardhan Puja. The Goswamis ceremoniously apply tilak on Shriji's brow and offer gold coins to him.

Akshay Navmi and Yugal Parikrama (Kartik Shukla Navmi)

Tuesday, November 5th

On this day, many devotees perform a large parikrama through both Mathura and Vrindavan.

Devotthan Ekadashi (Kartik Shukla Ekadashi)

Friday, November 8th

On this day, Shriji wears a special crown. In the evening, a kunj is created with sugarcane, under which an offering of raw fruits and vegetables is made to Vishnu and the gods. Without any bells or gongs, soft prayers are recited to awaken them from their four-month sleep of chaturmasya. After awakening them, abhishek is offered to shaligram shila with the sound of bells and gongs, and his full puja is performed. Then Shaligram Dev is placed on a small chariot and taken on parade (vijay yatra) around the outer altar. Thereafter, ghee lamps are offered to Shriji and from this day till the end of winter, Shriji uses a blanket at night. This is the last day of Niyam Seva, and one should end their vrat the following morning. From this day and continuing for five days Tulsi-Damodar pujan is held before Mangla Darshan. The Bhishma Panchakam vrat also begins today and ends on Kartik Purnima (for details, see Hari Bhakti Vilas).

Maha Raas Purnima (Kartik Purnima)

Tuesday, November 12th

This is the last day of Kartik month. On this night, Shri Radha-Krishna and the gopis enjoy Raas Lila under the full moon. Shri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu came to Vrindavan on this day, and in honour of his coming, a great procession is held in the streets of Vrindavan, starting around 4pm at the Amiya Nimai Mahaprabhu Mandir in Gopinath Bazar, and lasting until after midnight.
